

Sasha Nezlobin was one of Russia's biggest stand-up comedians — until he left everything behind for one reason: freedom of speech. Now rebuilding his life and career in America, Sasha brings an unforgettable hour of comedy that's sharp, fearless, personal, and surprisingly hilarious.

"I'm Fine" is a story about losing everything — your country, your career, your comfort — and discovering who you really are when you have to start over from nothing.

Dark, bold, honest, and deeply funny, Sasha blends cultural observations, personal stories, and hard-earned perspective into a comedy experience unlike anything else touring right now.

 Theater am Olgaek, Charlottenstraße 44, 70182

 Thursday, October 8th

 20:00